Pilot Gold to Begin Drilling at Kinsley Mountain

November 10, 2011, Vancouver, British Columbia – Nevada Sunrise Gold Corporation (“Nevada Sunrise” or the “Company”) (TSX-V: NEV) has been informed by Pilot Gold Inc. (“Pilot Gold”) (TSX: PLG) that it will initiate a diamond core drill program on the Kinsley Mountain property this month. Pilot Gold’s present plan is to drill up to six diamond core holes for the purpose of establishing stratigraphic and structural controls to mineralization at Kinsley Mountain.

During September, 2011, Pilot Gold purchased the Mining Option Agreement to enter into a Joint Venture at Kinsley Mountain with Nevada Sunrise from Animas Resources Ltd. (TSX-V: ANI). The Kinsley Mountain property consists of 141 claims covering a land area of 2,807 acres (1,136 hectares) on BLM land in the Kinsley Mountains in southeast Elko County, Nevada. The property lies roughly 45 miles (75 kilometers) southeast of the Long Canyon property where Pilot Gold’s geologic team, as part of Fronteer Gold Inc., defined a significant gold resource in what is now recognized as an emerging gold district. The stratigraphic intervals hosting mineralization at Kinsley Mountain are the same horizons that host mineralization at Long Canyon.

In Pilot Gold’s News Release announcing the Kinsley Mountain Option Agreement purchase, Pilot Gold’s Chief Geologist, Moira Smith stated, “Success at Long Canyon hinged on detailed geologic analysis, aggressive drilling and deposit modeling. We intend to deploy the same exploration team and strategy to Kinsley Mountain. The presence of an open pit and drilled mineralization in adjacent areas gives Pilot Gold a great starting point.”
